

The Marriage Beatitudes 1

Blessed are they that make love often, ministering to one another's sexual needs and preferences, for they shall not be tempted to look elsewhere.

Blessed are they that develop affectionate traditions such as regularly rubbing their spouse's back or feet, or stroking the other's hair, or holding hands, for they shall be appreciated.

Blessed are they who quickly ask one another's forgiveness, for they shall enjoy peace, unity, harmony, and... answered prayers!

Blessed are they who keep their marriage under pastoral care, for they shall grow together, not apart.

Blessed are they that regularly schedule dinner dates, for they shall listen compassionately to one another, laugh and cry, share memories, and dream again!

Blessed are they that schedule get-away weekends and trips alone as a couple, for their romantic fires shall burn again. Friends & family are there to keep the children.

Blessed are they that regularly pray together, for they shall experience the promised tenfold prayer power when two come together in agreement before God.

The Marriage Beatitudes 2

Blessed are they that never share their dreams or disappointments with someone else of the opposite sex besides their spouse, for they shall not fall into the adultery abyss which only leads to shame and public disgrace.

Blessed are they that share secret phrases, glances, memories, traditions, and playful activities between one another, for they shall laugh... and last!

Blessed are they that use good manners with one another like, "please", "thank you", and "you're welcome", for they shall stay sweethearts forever.

Blessed are they that "chip in" to help their spouse with chores, for they shall feel the deep satisfaction of being Christ-like.

Blessed are they that praise and encourage their spouse often, by recounting and vocalizing the many things they appreciate about them, for they shall forever be sweethearts.

Blessed are they that do not look to one another for the depth of closeness and fulfillment that only God Himself can provide, for they shall not be disappointed with their spouse. Their expectations of one another are realistic.

Blessed are they that get the proper health-care and stay physically fit, for this shall eliminate many root causes of marital pressures.

Blessed are they that discuss, pray over, and agree on financial decisions, for this shall eliminate almost all marital conflict.

The Marriage Beatitudes 3

Blessed are they that don't try to change or control their spouse, but instead secretly pray God's Word over their mate, never praying their own opinions over them.

Blessed are they that stay active in their local church, for they shall enjoy sweet fellowship with the Lord and other couples.

Blessed are they that choose to walk in Agapé Love with one another, God's supernatural love - the kind of love that's unconditional, unilateral, unmerited, and unlimited.

Blessed are they that read their Bibles daily, for they shall receive what only God can give, and thus they become a blessing to their mate!

Blessed are they that touch their spouse and children each day - many times - for this family shall feel secure and close... very close.

Blessed are they that keep the attitude that they have come into this marriage "to serve", instead of "to be served".

Blessed are they that compliment their spouse on their appearance and their achievements, for each shall feel important, respected, celebrated and wanted.

Blessed are they that don't wait for the other spouse to practice these beatitudes, but initiate them first; for their spouse shall sooner or later reciprocate.
